

New York v. Ferber (1982):

Synopsis of this unanimous decision: This case recognizes another category of expression that is not protected by the First Amendment; child pornography. Such involvement subjects children to physical and psychological harm and exploitation. Government may criminalize works that depict sexual conduct by children below a specified age.

